OSHA Data Information Services (ODIS) is a premier compiler of consumer and business information that specializes in sourcing public records from federal, state, county, municipal and international governments. Its experience with the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) and equivalent state and international open public records laws, along with long standing relationships with government agencies, offers efficiencies unavailable to those seeking to obtain government sourced data independently.

The Environmental Protection Agency requires companies that produce, handle, process, distribute or store certain potentially hazardous chemicals to develop and submit a copy of a risk management plan to the government. These are intended to provide information that could help authorities in the event of an accidental release of dangerous chemicals, and to help state and local governments better understand local chemical hazards. RMP filers have heightened awareness of regulatory compliance and represent excellent prospects for training seminars, consulting, other professional services and safety equipment.
